

SPITZER

This colorful image of the Orion Nebula is a composite from the Spitzer and Hubble Space Telescopes. The combination of infrared and visible light images reveals the abundance of hydrogen gas, sulfur gas, and carbon-rich organic molecules.

Penetrating cosmic clouds to find infant stars and the building blocks of life