Select the "Move Tool"

![Image of the Move Tool in Adobe Photoshop CS5 tool palette]
Click and drag the image onto the second image.

This will move the image into the other image. This way both of the images are on one workshop.
Position the image where you want it to lay.
Select "Add Layer Mask"

Make sure that the layer that you have just moved is selected.
Select the "Gradient Tool"

Click and hold down the icon and then select the "Gradient Tool"

Change the gradient type to "Black, White"
Select the "Mask"

- Click on the edge of the image and then go either left or right of the image wherever your image lies.
- I will be clicking and dragging my mouse to the right because my image is on the right side.

Use the "Gradient Tool"

- Click on the edge of the image and then go either left or right of the image wherever your image lies.
- I will be clicking and dragging my mouse to the right because my image is on the right side.
Change the "Blend Mode" to "Darken"
Use the "Gradient Tool"

- You can click and drag wherever you would like.
- This will build on the Gradient that you already have.
Change the "Opacity"

You can change the opacity of the layer if you want the image to be more transparent.

Finished Result